DOHENY TELLS STARTLING TALE

Former Cabinet Members on Oil Concern's Payroll.

PRODUCES MISSING FALL NOTE

Witness Testifies That Former Secretary of Treasury McAdoo Is Still on Doheny Payroll at $50,000 a Year—McAdoo Wires Chairman Walsh For a Hearing—Review of Doheny Testimony.

Washington, Feb. 2.—E. L. Doheny, the oil king, testifying before the senate committee investigating the navy oil leases, declared that William G. McAdoo, ex-President Wilson's son-in-law, secretary of the treasury under President Wilson's administration and a prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, has for five years been in the employ of the Doheny concern and that Doheny has thus far paid him a total of $250,000 for his legal services. Witness also said McAdoo is still getting $50,000 on the Doheny payroll.

Doheny further testified that he employed McAdoo because of his "influence over the Democratic administration," of which he had just been a part.

The McAdoo revelation was the climax of a series of disclosures made by the petroleum magnate in a guileless, matter-of-fact way, as if it were nothing extraordinary for him to "make loans" to high officials in office in the United States government and to make arrangements with them for Doheny employment as soon as they left office, at salaries of $50,000 each.

Before Doheny finished he had splashed with oil both the Wilson and Harding cabinets and over names of ex-Secretary of the Navy Daniels, George Creel, head of President Wilson's bureau of propaganda; ex-Secretary of the Interior Lane, ex-Assistant Secretary of the Interior Coffer, ex-Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison and ex-Assistant Attorney General Gregory, just chosen by President Coolidge to conduct an impartial investigation of the Doheny and Sinclair oil leases.

At the very opening of the hearing Doheny produced from his pocket-book the missing note which Fall, in December, 1920, gave him for the "loan" of $100,000. The signature of the note was torn off and Doheny said he could not find it either in New York or Los Angeles.

Senator Walsh put into evidence a hitherto secret letter from Doheny to Fall, dated Nov. 28, 1921, two days before Doheny dispatched his son from New York to Washington with the mysterious black bag containing $100,000 in cash for Fall. Doheny appeared dumbfounded at the letter concerning the closing of his lease of the navy's California oil lands from Fall. Doheny had testified he was having no dealings with Fall when he handed him the $100,000.

Signature Missing.
Asked why the signature was missing from the Fall notes, Doheny said that, after its receipt he tore off the signature and gave it to Mrs. Doheny to keep. Between them both, he explained, they thus had Fall's I. O. U., but in such form he would not be incriminated if they got killed in a train accident.

Doheny admitted that, apart from his old-time friendship for Fall, he made him this loan out of gratitude for the valuable services performed by Fall as a senator in urging our government to take a strong stand against Mexico. Doheny testified these services were of great value to Doheny Mexican properties, and also admitted that Fall had Mexican properties which were benefited.

He testified that while Secretary of the Interior Lane was in office he arranged to hire him for $50,000 a year as Doheny's personal assistant in the oil business. Besides hiring Lane from the department of the interior, Doheny also took Lane's assistant, Coffer, now Doheny's vice president. It was Coffer who conducted Doheny's negotiations with Fall for the California leases.

Listing the ex-cabinet members he had employed, Doheny mentioned Lindley M. Garrison, ex-secretary of war, as counsel for Blair & Company, a prominent New York stock brokerage firm, of which Doheny says he is a member. His membership in Blair & Company is now disclosed for the first time to the financial world.

Doheny admitted financing to Leo J. Slack, who posed as an ex-congressman, $8,250 to buy Stack's alleged influence over Secretary Daniels to grant to Doheny the Teapot Dome lease, which finally went to Harry F.

WOODROW WILSON

Recent Portrait of Former President of United States.

Of this $8,250 he said that $5,900 was intended for George Creel, whom the entire check was made out. He said Creel alleged he could do the trick with Daniels before the new Harding administration came in and gave the leases away to Republicans. Doheny is a Democrat. Later, Doheny said, the $8,250 was returned to him by a man named Schuyler, and he relinquished his claim to Stack's influence on Teapot Dome.

William G. McAdoo has wired Chairman Walsh for a hearing and it will be granted him.

PARENTS TO MEET GRIFFIS

City of Hamilton Plans Municipal Welcome to the Lieutenant.

Hamilton, O., Feb. 2.—Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Griffis, parents of Lieutenant Corliss Hoover Griffis, on his way home from Germany, where he was implicated for his part in the attempted kidnapping of Grover Cleveland Bergdoff, draft evader, will leave Hamilton for New York to greet their son upon his arrival at that port. They will be met there by Miss Dorothy Griffis, their daughter, now in school at Hollis, Va.

Hamilton plans a municipal welcome for Lieutenant Griffis. The chamber of commerce and American Legion have united upon a plan which includes a reception to Griffis at the train, an official escort to his home, a dinner at the Hamilton club, and a public welcome.

BRITAIN RECOGNIZES SOVIET GOVERNMENT

Premier MacDonald's Note an Extremely Guarded One.

London, Feb. 2.—Great Britain's recognition of soviet Russia is the greatest diplomatic sensation since the war.

Premier MacDonald's note to the soviet government is an extremely guarded document. Under clause 1 the premier, referring to "territories of the old Russian empire which acknowledge their authority," declares he desires to safeguard the position of Georgia, Armenia and Azerbaijan, which republics he personally visited.

No ambassador will be sent to Moscow until the soviet government has satisfactorily settled the outstanding questions cited in the note. Britain will not cancel any Russian debts and insists that the Russian delegates to the negotiating conferences have full power to negotiate. The latter provides for the fact that Krassin and Rakovsky have hitherto been bound hand and foot by Moscow and were unable to decide a single point before communicating with the central soviet.

The foreign office description of the note is that "the recognition will mean nothing unless it is followed by suitable response from Russia that they will adopt civilized usages."

Dispatches from Milan state that it is officially announced that next week will probably see the signature of the fifth commercial treaty between Italy and Russia, including recognition of the soviet government. The treaty will be signed in Rome.

WILSON DYING, SAY PHYSICIANS

Gradually Losing Ground, According to Latest Bulletins.

REPORTED TO BE IN NO PAIN

Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson, a Daughter, and Joseph R. Wilson, a Brother, at the Bedside of the Former President During the Night. End May Come at Any Moment to the Former President.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Woodrow Wilson is dying. Death may come at any moment within the next few hours.

The following bulletin was issued by attending physicians: "Mr. Wilson's temperature is normal, respiration 20, pulse 96. He has gradually lost ground. He has no pain."

After the issuance of the bulletin, Dr. Fowler and Dr. Ruffin departed, leaving Dr. Grayson in sole charge of the patient for the night. The former president's personal physicians announced that further bulletins would be issued only in case of death.

With Dr. Grayson in the Wilson home were Mrs. Wilson, wife; Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter; Joseph R. Wilson of Baltimore, brother; Fitzwilliam Woodrow, nephew; John Randolph Bolling, secretary, and Bernard M. Baruch, intimate friend of the former president.

Three physicians have been in constant attendance at the bedside, but all they could do was to make easier the last hours of the man who, as commander-in-chief, led the American people into the world's greatest war.

The former president was given frequent opiates in order that he might rest more comfortably. His nourishment consisted of three spoonfuls of chicken broth.

Although very low as night approached, Wilson still was able to recognize Dr. Grayson and Mrs. Wilson, but was hardly able to speak even in a faint whisper.

A stream of visitors, personal friends and distant admirers of the former chief executive, called at the Wilson home.

At the bedside are Mrs. Wilson, the wife, and Miss Margaret Wilson, a daughter. Speeding from San Francisco is Mrs. William Gibbs McAdoo, another daughter. In far away Siam, where her husband is American minister, is Mrs. W. B. Sayre, the third daughter. She can only await the final tidings.

Stricken Four Years Ago.

Mrs. Wilson bore up well under the strain. Since her husband was stricken, more than four years ago, his health has been her constant care. The inevitable breaking up found her ready to endure and serve in the last emergency. The first news that Mr. Wilson could not live became public yesterday afternoon, when Dr. Grayson, his voice broken and with tears in his eyes, left the former president's home for a short walk. "His death is inevitable," the physician said. "He knows. He is the greatest man I ever knew."

Only a short time before the dying man, his intellect clear, had placed a feeble hand on the physician's arm at the bedside. "I am ready," he whispered. "I am ready to go. I am a broken piece of machinery."

Two physicians, Dr. Sterling Ruffin and Dr. Harry Fowler, were called in consultation by Dr. Grayson. There was nothing that either could do. When they went away Dr. Grayson remained at the bedside to ease the last hours of the dying man.

The turn for the worse in Mr. Wilson's condition came as something of a surprise to his physicians and friends. Although an invalid ever since his collapse in September, 1919, the former president's condition, generally speaking, was regarded as quite satisfactory. Only last week he attended a local theater and apparently enjoyed the performance. A month ago he celebrated his 68th birthday. Two weeks ago he received at his home about 100 visitors in connection with the meeting here of the Democratic national committee.

Mr. Wilson's recent illness started Tuesday with a slight digestive disturbance. His condition on Wednesday was uncomfortable, but Thursday, when news of his illness first became public, he was up and about the house as usual. The turn for the worse came late that night.

Now Count of Fiume.

Milan, Feb. 2.—Gabriele D'Annunzio was created "Count of Fiume," recognition of his services to that city, which has now been annexed to Italy. The announcement is made in high circles in Rome.

The special claims convention was ratified several weeks ago by a vote of 42 to 5.

GREGORY'S NAME WITHDRAWN

President Coolidge Will Announce a Substitute.

PARLEY HELD AT WHITE HOUSE

Expert Accountants Start Work on Books of the Largest Stock Brokers at the Capital—Chairman Walsh to Summon Stock Brokers From Ohio—Senator Dill Would Have Brandeis as Prosecutor.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin and Curtis of Kansas were in conference with the President at the White House for more than an hour.

It was announced after the conference that under no circumstances will the name of Ex-Attorney General Gregory as special counsel in the oil lease prosecutions be submitted to the senate and that the substitute will be announced during the day.

Senator McKellar's resolution demands that none of the money shall be used to hire lawyers who have been directly or indirectly connected with the oil industry. This will bar Gregory, after yesterday's revelations, unless the president drops Gregory.

The White House issued a brief statement in part as follows: "In view of the statement of Mr. Doheny that Mr. Gregory had been his attorney, employment might be embarrassing to Mr. Gregory and perhaps would be improper."

Republican Floor Leader Longworth, on the floor of the house, said he understood that Thomas W. Gregory had declined to serve as one of the special counsel in prosecuting the oil lease scandal.

Harry F. Sinclair, answering Senator Lenroot's urgent request that he return immediately, says he will come back as soon as he can.

Expert accountants from the federal trade commission started work today on the books of Hibbs & Company, the largest stock brokers in Washington. They seek to ascertain which, if any, cabinet officers and senators were speculating in Sinclair Consolidated during the three months of 1922, when Fall alone knew that the valuable Teapot Dome lease was to be granted to Sinclair.

Walsh tried to subpoena the local manager of the stock brokerage firm of Ungerleider & Company, reputed to have done a big stock business with government officials. They found that the local office closed shortly after the death of President Harding. Walsh is seeking to find and bring the Ungerleider principals on from Columbus, O., the home town of Attorney General Daugherty.

Senator Dill in a speech on the floor of the senate demanded that Justice Brandeis of the supreme court resign or get a furlough in order to prosecute these oil leases on behalf of the people.

Secretary of State Hughes will be called upon by the senate investigating committee to explain how he happened to accept a gift of $50,000 of land from Doheny in Mexico City on which to build the American embassy.

DUNDEE BESTS MORAN

May Get Chance at Leonard's Crown the Coming Summer.

New York, Feb. 2.—Johnny Dundee was awarded the decision over Pal Moran of New Orleans in their 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden.

There was no title at stake, but the winner probably will get a chance at Benny Leonard's crown next summer. Moran was hoping to improve his claim for a shot at the champion, but Johnny put up one of the most sensational fights in his long career to win. Dundee proved too elusive for Moran's well meant pot shots at his jaw early in the going. Then when Pal got over his right to the heart, body and jaw, Dundee would go slugging with him, frequently beating him to the punch.

Mother and Three Children Perish.

Akron, O., Feb. 2.—Mrs. John Smith and her three young children were burned to death in their home here. They were found huddled together in the bed in the front downstairs room of a frame dwelling in East Akron. The blaze started when a roomer tried to start a fire with coal oil in a coal cook stove. It is believed.

VISITS SOUP KITCHENS

Daves Impressed by Sight of Germany's Undernourished Children.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The commission of experts examining Germany's resources is endeavoring to get both sides of the German situation. They are looking both into the heights and the depths of German life.

While the commission under Reginald McKenna inspected the big German banks in order to get a trace of the reputed exorbitant profits of the German industrialists and the exportation of their wealth to foreign countries, General Daves visited the public soup kitchens and especially the child feeding stations maintained by the American organization under General Henry T. Allen.

The sight of undernourished children made a deep impression on General Daves, who proved to be not only a man of cold figures and picturesque speech, but of human sympathies. It was a great contrast to the glamour of the newly-rich around the big hotels.

Wilson's Ailment.

Washington, Feb. 2.—When Woodrow Wilson collapsed in 1919, his physician fixed his remaining span of life at five years as the ultimate which might be hoped for. His ailment was cerebral thrombosis, or a rupture of a blood vessel on the brain. The extreme after this is five years, the average three. Since the 1919 attack Mr. Wilson has had a second attack, a mild one, shortly after the late President Harding was inaugurated. A third weakening of this blood vessel means the end.

REBELS' STAR SETTING

Mexican Federal Forces Soon to Occupy Port of Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—As the second month of the revolution closes there is only one sizeable army of rebels still undefeated. This is the force of former War Minister General Enrique Estrada, in the state of Michoacan. So far General Estrada has evaded a direct issue with the federal forces.

The disaster to the southern rebels at Liano Grande and Esperanza leaves the way open for the federals all the way to the Gulf of Mexico. Both of the rebel capitals, Vera Cruz in the south and Guadalajara in the west, are accessible to the federals whenever they wish to enter them, according to the war office.

It is freely predicted that the rebellion will collapse before another month. With the federal occupation of the port of Vera Cruz only a few days off, the so-called provisional government there is expected to adjourn to Havana.

Chief Seeks Reinstatement.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—Michael Davis, deposed police chief of Bellaire, O., has carried his case to the state supreme court in an effort to be reinstated. Davis was dismissed by Mayor John R. Wyaft on Nov. 29, 1922, after several charges, including incompetency, had been filed against him. The Bellaire civil service commission, common pleas court and appellate court upheld the dismissal.

Only last week he attended a local theater and apparently enjoyed the performance. A month ago he celebrated his 68th birthday. Two weeks ago he received at his home about 400 visitors in connection with the meeting here of the Democratic national committee.

Mr. Wilson's recent illness started Tuesday with a slight digestive disturbance. His condition on Wednesday was uncomfortable, but Thursday, when news of his illness first became public, he was up and about the house as usual. The turn for the worse came late that night.

The girl disappeared Wednesday night after she left the telephone office to go to her home. Other operators at the exchange told police the girl had reported to them a week ago that she had been attacked by three men, who attempted to force her into an auto. She struggled free and escaped, the girl said.

Moose Temple Raided.

Toledo, Feb. 2.—In a raid on the Moose temple Homer Yaryan, federal prohibition agent, and three patrolmen arrested William Baxendale, manager of the building, and seized 57 cases of near beer, five gallons of wine and two quarts of whiskey, according to the officers. Baxendale was held on a charge of violating the national prohibition laws.

Xenia, O., Feb. 2.—Police Chief M. E. Graham is holding G. L. Coleman, 19, colored, former student at Wilberforce university, near this city, for investigation in connection with the $30,000 fire which destroyed B. F. Lee hall at the school. Chief Graham said Coleman was dismissed from the school recently. Coleman denies any connection with the fire.

Smallpox Epidemic.

New Lexington, O., Feb. 2.—An epidemic of smallpox is raging at San Toy, this county. Fifty cases are reported by Dr. F. J. Crosbie, county physician. Dr. Crosbie, with a representative of the state department of health, visited the district. Dr. Crosbie said that every person in the San Toy district not affected with the disease will be vaccinated.

Woman Robbed of Jewels.

Cleveland, Feb. 2.—Police are seeking a thief who robbed Mrs. Phil Seiznick of jewels valued at $2,500 as she was about to put her auto in her garage. Greeting Mrs. Seiznick with a pleasant "Hello," the robber held her up at the point of a gun, seized two rings and a lavaliere and escaped.

Bishop Hickey Dead.

Cincinnati, Feb. 2.—Rt. Rev. Mgr. William D. Hickey, 67, vicar general of Cincinnati, archdiocese and chaplain of the convent of Sisters of Good Shepherd here, is dead after an illness of one week. His four brothers are priests here and his two sisters are sisters of the Order of Notre Dame.

Money Burned.

Another Auto Victim.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—A. H. Leonard, 55, died at White Cross hospital as a result of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—By a vote of 28 to 14 the Mexican senate ratified the general claims convention with the United States. The text of the convention was approved without modifications. The special claims convention were ratified several weeks ago by a vote of 42 to 5.

GREGORY'S NAME WITHDRAWN

President Coolidge Will Announce a Substitute.

PARLEY HELD AT WHITE HOUSE

Expert Accountants Start Work on Books of the Largest Stock Brokers at the Capital—Chairman Walsh to Summon Stock Brokers From Ohio—Senator Dill Would Have Brandeis as Prosecutor.

Washington, Feb. 2.—Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin and Curtis of Kansas were in conference with the President at the White House for more than an hour.

It was announced after the conference that under no circumstances will the name of Ex-Attorney General Gregory as special counsel in the oil lease prosecutions be submitted to the senate and that the substitute will be announced during the day.

Senator McKellar's resolution demands that none of the money shall be used to hire lawyers who have been directly or indirectly connected with the oil industry. This will bar Gregory, after yesterday's revelations, unless the president drops Gregory.

The White House issued a brief statement in part as follows: "In view of the statement of Mr. Doheny that Mr. Gregory had been his attorney, employment might be embarrassing to Mr. Gregory and perhaps would be improper."

Republican Floor Leader Longworth, on the floor of the house, said he understood that Thomas W. Gregory had declined to serve as one of the special counsel in prosecuting the oil lease scandal.

Harry F. Sinclair, answering Senator Lenroot's urgent request that he return immediately, says he will come back as soon as he can.

Expert accountants from the federal trade commission started work today on the books of Hibbs & Company, the largest stock brokers in Washington. They seek to ascertain which, if any, cabinet officers and senators were speculating in Sinclair Consolidated during the three months of 1922, when Fall alone knew that the valuable Teapot Dome lease was to be granted to Sinclair.

Walsh tried to subpoena the local manager of the stock brokerage firm of Ungerleider & Company, reputed to have done a big stock business with government officials. They found that the local office closed shortly after the death of President Harding. Walsh is seeking to find and bring the Ungerleider principals on from Columbus, O., the home town of Attorney General Daugherty.

Senator Dill in a speech on the floor of the senate demanded that Justice Brandeis of the supreme court resign or get a furlough in order to prosecute these oil leases on behalf of the people.

Secretary of State Hughes will be called upon by the senate investigating committee to explain how he happened to accept a gift of $50,000 of land from Doheny in Mexico City on which to build the American embassy.

DUNDEE BESTS MORAN

May Get Chance at Leonard's Crown the Coming Summer.

New York, Feb. 2.—Johnny Dundee was awarded the decision over Pal Moran of New Orleans in their 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden.

There was no title at stake, but the winner probably will get a chance at Benny Leonard's crown next summer. Moran was hoping to improve his claim for a shot at the champion, but Johnny put up one of the most sensational fights in his long career to win. Dundee proved too elusive for Moran's well meant pot shots at his jaw early in the going. Then when Pal got over his right to the heart, body and jaw, Dundee would go slugging with him, frequently beating him to the punch.

Mother and Three Children Perish.

Akron, O., Feb. 2.—Mrs. John Smith and her three young children were burned to death in their home here. They were found huddled together in the bed in the front downstairs room of a frame dwelling in East Akron. The blaze started when a roomer tried to start a fire with coal oil in a coal cook stove. It is believed.

Davies Impressed by Sight of Germany's Undernourished Children.

Berlin, Feb. 2.—The commission of experts examining Germany's resources is endeavoring to get both sides of the German situation. They are looking both into the heights and the depths of German life.

While the commission under Reginald McKenna inspected the big German banks in order to get a trace of the reputed exorbitant profits of the German industrialists and the exportation of their wealth to foreign countries, General Davies visited the public soup kitchens and especially the child feeding stations maintained by the American organization under General Henry T. Allen.

The sight of undernourished children made a deep impression on General Davies, who proved to be not only a man of cold figures and picturesque speech, but of human sympathies. It was a great contrast to the glamour of the newly-rich around the big hotels.

Wilson's Ailment.

Washington, Feb. 2.—When Woodrow Wilson collapsed in 1919, his physician fixed his remaining span of life at five years as the ultimate which might be hoped for. His ailment was cerebral thrombosis, or a rupture of a blood vessel on the brain. The extreme after this is five years, the average three. Since the 1919 attack Mr. Wilson has had a second attack, a mild one, shortly after the late President Harding was inaugurated. A third weakening of this blood vessel means the end.

REBELS' STAR SETTING

Mexican Federal Forces Soon to Occupy Port of Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Feb. 2.—As the second month of the revolution closes there is only one sizeable army of rebels still undefeated. This is the force of former War Minister General Enrique Estrada, in the state of Michoacan. So far General Estrada has evaded a direct issue with the federal forces.

The disaster to the southern rebels at Liano Gratile and Esperanza leaves the way open for the federals all the way to the Gulf of Mexico. Both of the rebel capitals, Vera Cruz in the south and Guadalupe in the west, are accessible to the federals whenever they wish to enter them, according to the war office.

It is freely predicted that the rebellion will collapse before another month. With the federal occupation of the port of Vera Cruz only a few days off, the so-called provisional government there is expected to adjourn to Havana.

Chief Seeks Reinstatement.

Columbus, Feb. 2.—Michael Davis, deposed police chief of Bellaire, O., has carried his case to the state supreme court in an effort to be reinstated. Davis was dismissed by Mayor John R. Wyatt on Nov. 29, 1922, after several charges, including incompetency, had been filed against him. The Bellaire civil service commission, common pleas court and appellate court upheld the dismissal.

THE OLD HOUSE

By AGNES G. BROGAN

(© 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

YEARS ago the old house had been a gracious hospitality.

"Miss Delphine" had passed out sorrowfully through the great gates. For Miss Delphine had married against her mother's wish.

Armand Thayer dreamed an artist's dream and was certain of his brush. That Armand failed later in his hope has been the tragedy of others before him.

As "Miss Delphine" left her mother's home and walked between nodding hollyhocks down the garden path at her lover's side, Nancy, her childhood nurse, was the only one to bid her farewell.

Delphine Roberts never forgave her disobedient daughter to the day of her death. But at that time the old family lawyer sent word that the isolated estate had been bequeathed to that daughter.

Delphine, the third, had smiled ruefully, as her mother read the communication in their tiny city apartment.

Armand, the disappointed, had long ago passed on, leaving his little daughter and the faithful wife who had loved him, to their own resources. In some way "Miss Delphine," supported her child in comfort.

The young daughter grew gratefully and silently appreciative; no, there was no disappointment for the exile in her child.

"A legacy!" cried Delphine, the third, and laughed. "To what depths may a proud possession fall. Why, mother, the old house is practically useless, the lawyer informs us. 'No person,' he insists, 'could be persuaded to live in the remote place.'"

Miraculously Delphine had learned that a brush of water color in her gifted hand was more profitable than the detested needle.

Delphine found a ready sale for her tinted menu cards and for various dainty party favors.

Then one day Delphine remembered the estate which had passed down to her. And she went to place it in the hands of an agent.

Mr. Cottrell had been an old friend of her mother's. He told the young woman frankly how little hope there was of disposing of the great house, so long unused. He would, he said, send an agent to look the place over, and would then suggest to her the means of disposition.

Delphine, returning to the tiny apartment, decided to take a day herself to visit the old home of her people. The walk from the village, she was told as she left the train, would be over two miles. Would she like to take the village taxi out to the old house? Delphine decided to walk.

She had planned to spend some time resting in the garden and procured in the village a picnic lunch.

"Miss Delphine's child took one of the duplicate keys Mr. Cottrell had given her and opened the door. Emptiness—silence everywhere—a feeling of awe possessed her. She hastened out to the garden to gather flowers for the desolate mantle above the fireplace.

Wayne Cottrell brought his car over the last jolt of the road as the storm fell. He viewed with relief the barn behind the old house and ran his car to cover. Then he, too, ran toward the old house and inserted the key his father had given him in the lock of the door which Delphine had entered. He was impatient with this errand which the elder member of the firm of Cottrell & Cottrell had commissioned him.

Now surprised—evidently not unpleasantly surprised—he paused. Before a fire of brushwood knelt an attractive young woman. Coffee in a battered tin steamed fragrantly and a tempting luncheon was spread on a gay paper cloth placed on the floor. The young woman sprang to her feet.

"I am," Wayne explained, "Mr. Cottrell's son—sent out to look over this house, with a view to listing it."

"I am," the attractive, young woman, returned, "owner of the house; the one who asked Mr. Cottrell to list it."

Rain swept against the windows. "Please join me at luncheon," Delphine invited, "and we will talk over the possibilities of my homestead."

It was an enjoyable luncheon, though the guest sat upon the floor, while his hostess leaned against a pillar of the fireplace.

Then slowly down the stairs toward them came a bent old woman.

She spoke nervously. "I—am nurse Nancy, who cared for your mother, Miss. I heard your conversation as I rested on the stair. When this house was left quite deserted I came back to make my home here. I have made livable the very room upstairs that used to be 'Miss Delphine's.' Will you come there now? I can make you both comfortable."

That evening, when moonlight followed storm, Delphine rode to the city with Wayne Cottrell.

He looked back to the porch of the welcoming arms.

"If you intend to spend the summer with your mother's old nurse here, may I run over often from the lake shore? The old house might be made into a summer home some time," Wayne added musingly.

Delphine had the fancy of the smile of the crescent window—the watching window eyes above. The house had welcomed bridal couples back through its doorway.

The old house smiled.

Great Help to Him

A canvasser was selling tickets for a raffle, the proceeds of which were to be devoted to a charitable object. He went all around the village, and at last he called at the shop of one Mark Sturdy, the butcher.

He needed some persuasion, but at last the old man went so far as to ask what the prize was.

"It is a magnificent encyclopedia," replied the canvasser. "Very useful indeed, and absolutely the finest work of its kind on the market."

"Oh," said old Mark. "I must have a couple of these tickets for my son, Sam. He's a great cyclist."

Very Smart Cape Dress Made of "Pompom" Silk

Showing a winsome cape dress, in which "pompom" silk, an attractive fabric, is done in a most interesting manner.

Late Fashion Notes of Interest to All Women

"Hostess" gowns, which are really glorified negligees, are becoming even more glorious. They are made of hand-loomed brocades, filmed with rainbow gauze.

Sardinian flit, hitherto used principally in fine luncheon sets, is seen upon afternoon frocks. This use for it is part of the wide vogue for laces of every kind.

Wooden jewelry is seen now and then with frocks embroidered in Czech or Russian designs. This wood is smooth as satin, highly polished and carved into remarkable designs.

Choker necklaces of huge pearls are a renaissance of the choker neck ornaments so fashionable last season. The big choker pearls have come in as folds for the black velvet frock.

Egyptian allover embroidery is now seen on swanky little short-coated suits designed for winter resort wear.
In some cases quaint little Egyptian faces peer out in the midst of lotus buds and ancient religious symbols.

Uncut emeralds in dull gold setting of an old-fashioned and heavy design were the jewels worn by one marvelously gowned woman at the opera.
Her dress was of self-velvet in a shade that matched the misted green of her jewels.

There is a fad for rather small raf-feta wrist bags to be carried to the opera. These perishably dainty things in faint rose, lavender and pearly white are just large enough to hold fan, opera glasses, handkerchief and powder box. They are long and narrow.

Hands and Nails May Be Kept in Condition

If a little sympathetic care and attention are given to the hands and nails at the end of a few months their condition will show a great improvement.

Cracked and split nails are often a sign of ill health. A nightly application of cold cream, however, often helps to overcome this condition.

The hands should be immersed in warm, soapy water for a few moments.
Then with a soft piece of old linen or silk press back the cuticle of each nail, separately.

For 15 minutes soak tips of the fingers in soapy water. After taking care of the cuticle apply the polish, paste or powder. Powder should be moistened with cologne before applying. Next, take a piece of coarse linen cloth and before the polish has a chance to dry rub the nails well. Then finish by about a ten minutes' rubbing with a chamols buffer. This will give a brilliant polish.

Lemon juice will give the nails the much desired transparency, besides being a good preventive for growing cuticle. Lemon juice also is a splendid whitener for the hands and keeps the skin smooth. It is as cleansing as soap and water. When household or other duties make the hands rough and dry lemon juice should be used instead of soap and water.

The Three-Piece Suit.

The question of how to appear to advantage upon all daytime occasions is answered by the three-piece suit.
Extremely simple and smart in line when the coat is worn, it may take on a decidedly elaborate aspect when the coat is removed. Underneath is either a really beautiful one-piece frock or a costume blouse of strikingly handsome material. These blouses, by the way, have never been more exquisite. There is, for instance, a ravishingly lovely affair of pale silver cloth, sleeveless and with a rounded neckline.

Immense Waterspout

A Washington scientist has recorded the particulars concerning a great waterspout he observed south of Cape Comorin on a day when the weather was fine and the sea smooth. The waterspout formed between a russetgray cloud and the sea nearly five miles from the ship. At first the distance between the base of the cloud and the surface of the sea was 4,600 feet and the width of the column tapered from 500 feet at its juncture with the cloud to 150 feet at the sea.
The vortex appeared to be a tube with tapering sides and a central column. The walls seemed to consist of water moving downward and the central column of water ascending. The phenomenon lasted for thirteen minutes.
The walls broke and the central column appeared to ascend into the cloud.

The Humorous Farmer

The summer boarder's brand of alleged humor was very tiresome, more than the old farmer had contracted for when he quoted rates. Cracks at everything pertaining to rural life were becoming monotonous. The grizzled agriculturist was about due for a come-back when the summer boarder hailed him from the edge of a patch of swampy woods.

"If I am bitten by a squirrel," asked the facetious one, "will I go nutty?"

"No," responded the farmer grimly.
"And if you are bitten by a frog you won't croak."

Falcon Exhausted by Flight Captured on Ship

One of the most recent additions to the London zoo is a peregrine falcon which, alighting on a vessel in the Atlantic, a thousand miles from land, was captured and brought to London. It is still a mystery how birds can exist during these terrible journeys across the seas.

This falcon had evidently completed half the journey on which he set out, and there is no reason to doubt that the strongest members of the tribe do succeed where this one failed.

All hawks (the peregrine falcon is one of the most beautiful of them) are swift and strong on the wing. Our ancestors set high value upon good specimens, which were trained to hunt and bring down game.

The king's falconer was a personage of some importance. There are records of the sport so far back as 2,000 years ago. The falconer carried a bird on his wrist, and when the game had traveled a certain distance the hawk was released. It gave chase and brought down the game by swooping on it from above.

In India falcons were trained to hunt deer and similar large game. Rising high in the air, the bird descended with lightning speed and struck its talons into the head of the animal, which thus became flustered and panic-stricken and was easily caught up by the hunt.—London Tit-Bits.

Paul Revere Was Artist, Engraver and Dentist

Paul Revere, famous for his historical ride during the Revolutionary war, seems to have been one of those men who can do anything and do it well. He was an artist and an engraver of both wood and metal. He was a silversmith of rare skill, and he even turned his attention to dentistry in the early days when dentistry was barely beginning to be a science. There is still extant one of his advertisements of 1776, reading:

"Whereas, many persons are so unfortunate as to lose their Foreteeth by Accident, and otherways, to their great Detriment, not only in looks, but speaking both in Public and Private—This is to inform all such, that they may have them Replaced with artificial Ones, that looks as well as the Natural, and answers the End of Speaking to all Intents, by Paul Revere."

When, quite a while after Bunker Hill, it was desired to remove the body of General Warren from its first resting place, it was Paul Revere who identified it by an artificial tooth and the wire he had used to fasten it in.—Detroit News.

In State of Ignorance

A man who said he lived in Chicago stood before the judge in City court a few days ago to answer to a charge of vagrancy.

"On what street do you live?" the judge asked.
"I just can't remember the name of that street, your honor," replied the prisoner.

"Well, does it run east and west or north and south?" queried the judge.
"Well, sir, I'm not positive which way it does run. I never was no good on directions."

"You should be in vaudeville," the judge said, when he ordered the man discharged.

"Just where is that town, judge?" asked the man. "Seems like I don't remember I ever heard of that place before."—Indianapolis News.

Radio Used by Police

When the telephone was perfected it was considered a valuable ally of the police in apprehending escaping criminals, but the automobile has largely spoiled its usefulness. One person can only phone to one place at one time, while a bandit in an automobile may be going elsewhere in any direction. Police departments are now adopting printing telegraphs and the radio as a supplement to the phone. Outlying and suburban police stations are equipped with receiving apparatus, and one operator at the central station can flash the description of the fleeing criminal in all directions instantly, laying down a barrage of publicity through which it is more difficult to escape.

He Was Game

There was a very pretty nurse passing in and out. The patient eyed her with admiration. By way of a pleasantry the doctor said: "Be a good boy and I'll prescribe a kiss for you at four o'clock."

But at four o'clock an extremely homely nurse came on duty, as the physician knew she would. However, the next day he ventured to ask the patient how things had gone.

"I took my medicine," briefly reported the young man.

Boy's Funny Ideas

"A palmit," wrote a youngster, "is a woman who uses her hand instead of her slipper."

"The difference between an elephant and a microbe," wrote another, "is that an elephant carries a trunk and a microbe carries the grip."

The Nerve of Him

Mrs. Hoolihan—Sure an' the land-lord flirited this mornin'.

Mr. Hoolihan—Wot? Wid you?
Mrs. Hoolihan—Naw, wid death. He had the nerve to ask me for the riat, and us only four mont's behind.

MEETINGS CLOSED

Revival at United Brethren Church Was Most Successful.

The revival meetings at the United Brethren church closed Sunday evening being a very successful, one. There was a wonderful outpouring of the Holy Spirit, Sunday morning when after a splendid spiritual sermon several came to the altar, young men, young women and children and gave their hearts to God.

Followed a regular love feast, when fathers and mothers whose children were at the altar, wept and shouted for joy. Surely God was very near that morning, for it was a wonderful time. Twelve joined the church in the after service making thirty-eight that have joined since conference. A substantial offering was raised for Professor Good, of Pickington, who by his winning manner, his chorus work and his training of the children did much for the success of the meeting.

Last but not least, the earnest, spiritual sermons that were preached by the pastor from night to night set many a heart thinking, only eternity will tell the fruits thereof. All in all it was a good meeting, a good place to be and one we trust led us all nearer heavenward.

Falcon Exhausted by Flight Captured on Ship

One of the most recent additions to the London zoo is a peregrine falcon which, alighting on a vessel in the Atlantic, a thousand miles from land, was captured and brought to London. It is still a mystery how birds can exist during these terrible journeys across the seas.

This falcon had evidently completed half the journey on which he set out, and there is no reason to doubt that the strongest members of the tribe do succeed where this one failed.

All hawks (the peregrine falcon is one of the most beautiful of them) are swift and strong on the wing. Our ancestors set high value upon good specimens, which were trained to hunt and bring down game.

The king's falconer was a personage of some importance. There are records of the sport so far back as 2,000 years ago. The falconer carried a bird on his wrist, and when the game had traveled a certain distance the hawk was released. It gave chase and brought down the game by swooping on it from above.

In India falcons were trained to hunt deer and similar large game. Rising high in the air, the bird descended with lightning speed and struck its talons into the head of the animal, which thus became flustered and panic-stricken and was easily caught up by the hunt.—London Tit-Bits.

Paul Revere Was Artist, Engraver and Dentist

Paul Revere, famous for his historical ride during the Revolutionary war, seems to have been one of those men who can do anything and do it well. He was an artist and an engraver of both wood and metal. He was a silversmith of rare skill, and he even turned his attention to dentistry in the early days when dentistry was barely beginning to be a science. There is still extant one of his advertisements of 1776, reading:

"Whereas, many persons are so unfortunate as to lose their foreteeth by Accident, and otherwise, to their great Detriment, not only in looks, but speaking both in Public and Private—This is to inform all such, that they may have them Replaced with Artificial Ones, that looks as well as the Natural, and answers the End of Speaking to all Intents, by Paul Revere."

When, quite a while after Bunker Hill, it was desired to remove the body of General Warren from its first resting place, it was Paul Revere who identified it by an artificial tooth and the wire he had used to fasten it in.—Detroit News.

In State of Ignorance

A man who said he lived in Chicago stood before the judge in City court a few days ago to answer to a charge of vagrancy.

"On what street do you live?" the judge asked.

"I just can't remember the name of that street, your honor," replied the prisoner.

"Well, does it run east and west or north and south?" queried the judge.

"Well, sir, I'm not positive which way it does run. I never was no good on directions."

"You should be in vaudeville," the judge said, when he ordered the man discharged.

"Just where is that town, judge?" asked the man. "Seems like I don't remember I ever heard of that place before."—Indianapolis News.

Radio Used by Police

When the telephone was perfected it was considered a valuable ally of the police in apprehending escaping criminals, but the automobile has largely spoiled its usefulness. One person can only phone to one place at one time, while a bandit in an automobile may be going elsewhere in any direction. Police departments are now adopting printing telegraphs and the radio as a supplement to the phone. Outlying and suburban police stations are equipped with receiving apparatus, and one operator at the central station can flash the description of the fleeing criminal in all directions instantly, laying down a barrage of publicity through which it is more difficult to escape.

He Was Game

There was a very pretty nurse passing in and out. The patient eyed her with admiration. By way of a pleasantry the doctor said: "Be a good boy and I'll prescribe a kiss for you at four o'clock."

But at four o'clock an extremely homely nurse came on duty, as the physician knew she would. However, the next day he ventured to ask the patient how things had gone.

"I took my medicine," briefly reported the young man.

Boy's Funny Ideas

"A palmist," wrote a youngster, "is a woman who uses her hand instead of her slipper."

"The difference between an elephant and a microbe," wrote another, "is that an elephant carries a trunk and a microbe carries the grip."

The Nerve of Him

Mrs. Hoolihan—Sure an' the land-lord flirted this mornin'.

MEETINGS CLOSED

Revival at United Brethren Church Was Most Successful.

The revival meetings at the United Brethren church closed Sunday evening being a very successful, one. There was a wonderful outpouring of the Holy Spirit, Sunday morning when after a splendid spiritual sermon several came to the altar, young men, young women and children and gave their hearts to God.

Followed a regular love feast, when fathers and mothers whose children were at the altar, wept and shouted for joy. Surely God was very near that morning, for it was a wonderful time. Twelve joined the church in the after service making thirty-eight that have joined since conference. A substantial offering was raised for Professor Good, of Pickington, who by his winning manner, his chorus work and his training of the children did much for the success of the meeting.

Last but not least, the earnest, spiritual sermons that were preached by the pastor from night to night set many a heart thinking, only eternity will tell the fruits thereof. All in all it was a good meeting, a good place to be and one we trust led us all nearer heavenward.

Milk From Coconuts.

Along the Orange river natives have an ingenious way of producing "milk." After cutting the top from a coconut they place it over ashes so that the warmth may cause the fat and "butter" contained in the husk to be absorbed by the milk; this changes the milk's quantity and gives it a palatable taste.

DESCRIBES 30 YEARS OF FARM WORK IN ALASKA

Experiments With Plants and Animals Show Agricultural Possibilities of Territory.

Growing interest in Alaska as long ago as 1897 led congress to make an appropriation for experimental work in agriculture in that territory. An account of this work since then and up to the present date is included in a report just issued by the director of the states relations service of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington covering the past 30 years.

A station was established, says the report, at Sitka and subsidiary stations have since been maintained at Kenai (transferred to Kodiak in 1908), Copper Center (transferred to Fairbanks in 1908), Rampart, Fairbanks, Matanuska, and on Kodiak island. C. C. Georgeson has been in immediate charge of all the Alaska work since the beginning, and Walter H. Evans, who joined the Washington force of the office of experiment stations in 1892, has represented this office in general supervision of this enterprise.

Through extensive travel of station officers, reports by settlers on their use of seeds distributed by the stations and on their other agricultural operations, and a large amount of experimental work with plants and animals, great progress has been made in determining the agricultural possibilities of this vast territory. Much has also been done in selecting and breeding varieties of plants adapted to the soil and climate conditions in different parts of Alaska. Experiments with animals have also shown much regarding their breeding, care, and management as related to Alaskan conditions. It has been demonstrated that wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and many kinds of vegetables of good quality can be grown in different parts of the territory. Numerous gardens in many places now regularly furnish settlers goodly contributions to their food supply and a considerable number of farmers and horticulturists are carrying on larger agricultural operations. A basis has thus been laid by the station work for considerable agriculture in Alaska when the growth of mining, lumbering, and other industries encourages a sufficiently large influx of farming people.

Miss Otto, who is a native of the city of Wurzburg, Bavaria, has studied law at the universities of Wurzburg, Leipzig, Berlin and Munich, where she got her degree. She is also a graduate of the Munich Commercial college, and has for the last four years been practicing with a well-known Munich solicitors firm.

Farm Organizations Do $2,000,000,000 Business

Marketing organizations of farmers did more than $2,000,000,000 worth of business last year.

Reports to the Department of Agriculture at Washington from 2,600 grain organizations show business totaling $490,000,000; 1,841 dairy products organizations, $300,000,000; 1,182 live stock shipping associations, $220,000,000; 958 fruit and vegetable associations, $280,000,000; 78 cotton co-operations, $100,000,000, and 14 tobacco organizations, $132,000,000.

Only 8,313 of the 10,300 organizations have reported, of which 90 per cent were primarily engaged in selling farm products and 10 per cent in collective purchasing of farm supplies.

Girls to Whistle for Police When Molested

Whistling for a policeman may become the chief form of protection of women against criminals. A private detective of Los Angeles has invented a whistle for women to carry, which, he asserts, if used properly, will be greater aid in eliminating crime than if citizens carried guns.

He has demonstrated his plan, and hopes to standardize the signal so that it will be known throughout the country as the official call for help. Companies will be asked to provide their employees with them and give instructions in their use.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

Sues For Divorce.

Maud Fox has filed a suit for divorce from Isaac Fox in the probate court. The couple were married November 26, 1908, and have four children, the youngest of whom is four years of age. She charges her husband with extreme cruelty and gross neglect and with consorting with Anna Shaeffer and twitting her with the fact. The plaintiff asks for alimony and for the custody of her children. C. A. Weldon represents the plaintiff. Will of Caddy Miller.

The will of Caddy Miller has been probated. The testator directs his executor to pay the trustees of Forest cemetery the sum of $100, the interest of which is to be used for the upkeep of the family lot.

After making specific bequests and paying debts and expenses, the remainder is given to St. Philip's Episcopal church. The estate is estimated to be worth $35,000 and the sum the church receives will probably be $20,000. Milt Morris is named as trustee and sole executor. The appraisers are G. A. Schleyer, O. S. Howard and D. S. Dunlap.

Divorce Granted.

James Lemay has been granted a divorce from Agnes Lemay in probate court by Judge Adkins. The divorce was granted on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and the defendant was restored to her maiden name, Agnes Davis. Barton Walters represented the plaintiff.

Appointed Administrators.

O. M. Beckett was appointed administrator of the estate of Margaret C. Helmick. J. O. Beckett, P. E. Peters and A. J. Hott were appointed appraisers.

Reed Gloyd was appointed administrator of the estate of William Gloyd deceased. The estate is estimated to be worth $2000 of which $1,000 is personal. Frank Hutchins, Robert Hott and Ray Reed were appointed appraisers.

Hotel Stenographer BY ROE FULKERSON

"Look at that lip," said the Hotel Stenographer, "I went out for an automobile ride last night on the National highway which runs to Hanover. When you get on a road like that you can't stop. The windshield was open and my lip chapped and now it's all split and me slated for a party with a new boy tonight."

"Was you kissing him?" asked the House Detective.

"No," cried the girl, emphatically. "Most women do not like to kiss men. They like to kiss one particular man, of course, but the idea of being kissed and petted by men, as a class, does not appeal to many girls, Kelly."

"But all women want every man they meet to think while he is with them, how nice it would be to kiss them."

"That's why I am heartbroken over this lip. Can you imagine any one wanting to kiss a girl with a split lip?"

"Any woman would rather have inflammatory rheumatism than a head cold. The reason is no man ever wanted to kiss a woman whose nose was red or who was likely to explode into a sneeze."

"That's why every woman is more careful to powder her nose than the rest of her face and is more anxious to get her lipstick work straight than to have her rouge properly placed."

"Dentists, perfumers and compact makers all get a living out of the fact that every woman wants to look kissable, although few women want to be kissed."

"The highest compliment a man can pay a woman is to want to kiss her, and it is always wise for him to tell her so, even if he does not try to do it."

"Don't worry, kid," laughed Kelly. "I'll kiss you, lip or no lip."

"Try and do it!" snapped the girl.

Illuminating Irritation.

Ida incidentally indicates interest in fees, Irving, impressionable, infatuated, indelicately invests. Ida's indulgence in fees inordinate, insatiable. Irving, impetuous, inaptly introduces inexpensive innovations, Ida, instantly irate, in impatient irritation, indignantly, impeaches Irving's iterated infatuation, insinuating indifference, inurbanity. Ida's infantile, inelegant invective illuminates Irving's innermost intelligence, inhibiting infatuation, intercepting intentions.—Youth's Companion.

U. S. HUNTER BARES PLOT TO GET BOUNTY ON WOLF

Government predatory-animal hunters must not only know how to trap and poison stock-killing wild animals, but also must be on the alert to detect human attempts to obtain rewards fraudulently by exploiting the hunters, according to common experience among these men. As an instance, last August Hunter C. E. Gillham was detailed by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture to the Agulla district of Arizona, with instructions to destroy a notorious wolf that had been running on that range for the past nine years. Bounties of from $50 to $500 had been offered for it by stockmen, but without success. Last winter this wolf had killed 40 sheep in one night, in addition to the hundreds of calves and yearlings it had attacked previously. Although shot at many times, it had always escaped, and also it managed to avoid all traps and poison baits.

It was agreed that Gillham would undertake to get the wolf on condition that all bounty offers be withdrawn. After trailing the old thief for about five weeks, the hunter found a yearling heifer killed by it within a mile and a half of Agulla. He dragged it behind his automobile for a mile, and put out poisoned baits made of its flesh. The day after he put out these baits, he found the carcass of a big coyote that usually followed behind the wolf in its cattle-killing expeditions, but no trace of the wolf.

Later on a man who lives in the district brought in the skin of the famous wolf. He claimed he had shot the animal and tried to collect bounty. On examination it was found not only that the wolf had been shot after it had been dead for some time, but that the stomach contained four poisoned baits. The bounty seeker, thus exposed in his dishonesty, gave up the skin without further trouble.

Physician Claims New Cure for Tuberculosis

New York.—A new treatment for pulmonary tuberculosis whereby the disease is attacked through the building up of fibrous tissue in the lymphatics of the lungs has been announced to the medical profession by Dr. Thomas F. Noland (above) of New York. During 13 years' study he claims he has found that amorphous carbon and calcium salts, in powder form, breathed in the lungs, checks the further advance of the disease. Doctor Noland is shown in his office demonstrating the manner in which medicine used in the treatment is administered to patients through an apparatus of his own construction.

Gold Spangled Pearls Discovered in France

A fresh-water pearl fishery is one of the hitherto unsuspected treasures of France, according to a report by M. Henneguy to the Academy of Sciences at Paris. He said Raphael Dubois has discovered in the center of France fresh water mussels that produce pearls comparing favorably in color and brilliance with the best efforts of the oyster. As a specimen M. Henneguy exhibited a pearl of oval form with a slightly purplish tint and brilliant luster.

The microscope showed a small spangle of gold incrusting in the pearl, and it is recalled that the Romans obtained certain quantities of gold from the sands of water courses of central France during their domination. Members of the academy are skeptical of the productive capacity of the fresh-water mussel, although they regard the specimen shown as of undoubted value.

Shark Cut to Ribbons by Propeller on Launch

An attack on a launch by a giant shark is described by Arthur Robinson. He said he was en route from Lautoka to Yasawas, in Fiji islands, when his small launch struck heavily against something.

"I first thought we had hit a reef," he related, "but could not understand it, as we were in deep water. A minute afterward came another bang and a great thudding under the stern. I looked over the side and saw a big shark with his head and mouth in ribbons. He must have gone for a feed off the propeller. It killed him. He simply rolled round and round like a corkscrew and went straight down till out of sight."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The senior class of the Circleville high school gave a party at the school Thursday night. It was a "kid" party, everybody dressed appropriately. It was well attended, the chaperones being Miss Watson and Miss Poole, of the faculty. Rompers, hair ribbons, doll babies and socks donned by the girls, while the boys appeared in short trousers, bow ties and chewing gum. Dancing and games were enjoyed by all. Lunch was delightfully served after which the party adjourned.

The Woman's Home Missionary society and their friends were delightfully entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Catherine Downs, the hostess being assisted by the members of group three. Mrs. William Elm gave a most interesting talk on "The Child and the School" after which Mrs. Harry McMahon very successfully led in a discussion of the subject. Two musical numbers were given, a vocal duet by Mrs. Mack Noggle and Miss Carrie Johnson and a piano solo by Miss Dorothy Johnson. These numbers were well rendered and greatly appreciated by the ladies. A social hour followed, during which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

DUNLAP WILL UPHELD

The jury in the case of Henry Dunlap against Lulu Dunlap Laird and others in which the plaintiff sought to have the will of their father, the late Marion Dunlap, set aside, made its report to Judge C. A. Reid in the common pleas court of Fayette county. The case was bitterly contested. The plaintiff was represented by C. E. Robuck and Maddox & Maddox. John Logan and John P. Phillips for the defendants. The case was started on January 16, of this year.

A lunatic who recently escaped from an asylum was eventually recaptured in a large dancing hall in the west end. The fact that he was waltzing divinely and keeping perfect time with the music aroused the other dancers' suspicions and led to his recapture.—Punch, London.

HARTMAN THEATER

The great American thriller, "Whispering Wires" the melo drama that Kate L. McLaurin made for the stage from a Saturday evening Post story of the same name by Henry Leverage will be the attraction at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days, February 11, 12 and 14, with a matinee on Wednesday. This very successful play ran all last year in New York and many of the metropolitan dramatic critics declared it was a far better play than either "The Bat" or "The Cat and the Canary." The original story from which it was dramatized was a corking good detective yarn and in transferring it to the stage Miss McLaurin was careful not to lose any of its exciting moments.

Montgomery Stockbridge is one of these hard men of wealth who care nothing for anything but money. In amassing a fortune he even dealt harshly with friends. Many of those former associates turn on him and would destroy him. One of them unknown to Stockbridge sends him a letter, telling this man of wealth that his grave has been dug. Furious, he summons the police. While discussing the probable writer of the letter Stockbridge is informed over his own private telephone that he will be dead in two hours' time. And he does die despite the fact that detectives are guarding him. But to tell more would be to spoil the thrill of the play. Thrill follows thrill with a love story interwoven with laughter punctuating the more serious situations. That is why "Whispering Wires" is called the great American thriller. Since its run in New York, such cities as Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston have put their stamp of approval on it. It comes to Columbus direct from its Boston engagement of ten weeks with the original company. Mail orders are being filled in the order of their receipt. The engagement lasts only three days with a Wednesday matinee.

DESCRIBES 30 YEARS OF FARM WORK IN ALASKA

Experiments With Plants and Animals Show Agricultural Possibilities of Territory.

Growing interest in Alaska as long ago as 1897 led congress to make an appropriation for experimental work in agriculture in that territory. An account of this work since then and up to the present date is included in a report just issued by the director of the states relations service of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington covering the past 30 years.

A station was established, says the report, at Sitka and subsidiary stations have since been maintained at Kenai (transferred to Kodiak in 1908), Copper Center (transferred to Fairbanks in 1908), Rampart, Fairbanks, Matanuska, and on Kodiak Island. C. C. Georgeson has been in immediate charge of all the Alaska work since the beginning, and Walter H. Evans, who joined the Washington force of the office of experiment stations in 1892, has represented this office in general supervision of this enterprise.

Through extensive travel of station officers, reports by settlers on their use of seeds distributed by the stations and on their other agricultural operations, and a large amount of experi- mental work with plants and animals, great progress has been made in de- termining the agricultural possibilities of this vast territory. Much has also been done in selecting and breeding varieties of plants adapted to the soil and climate conditions in different parts of Alaska. Experiments with animals have also shown much re- garding their breeding, care, and man- agement as related to Alaskan condi- tions. It has been demonstrated that wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, and many kinds of vegetables of good quality can be grown in different parts of the territory. Numerous gardens in many places now regularly furnish settlers goodly contributions to their food supply and a considerable num- ber of farmers and horticulturists are carrying on larger agricultural opera- tions. A basis has thus been laid by the station work for considerable ag- riculture in Alaska when the growth of mining, lumbering, and other in- dustries encourages a sufficiently large influx of farming people.

First Woman Admitted to the Bar in Germany

Miss Maria Otto, LL. D., who was sworn in at the Munich law courts recently, and admitted to the bar as the first woman solicitor in Germany. Miss Otto, who is a native of the city of Wurzburg, Bavaria, has studied law at the universities of Wurzburg, Leipzig, Berlin and Munich, where she got her degree. She is also a graduate of the Munich Commercial college, and has for the last four years been practicing with a well-known Munich solicitors firm.

Farm Organizations Do $2,000,000,000 Business

Marketing organizations of farmers did more than $2,000,000,000 worth of business last year. Reports to the Department of Agri- culture at Washington from 2,600 grain organizations show business totaling $490,000,000; 1,841 dairy products or- ganizations, $300,000,000; 1,182 live stock shipping associations, $220,000, 000; 956 fruit and vegetable associa- tions, $280,000,000; 78 cotton co-opera- tives, $100,000,000; and 14 tobacco or- ganizations, $132,000,000.

Only 8,313 of the 10,300 organiza- tions have reported, of which 90 per cent were primarily engaged in sell- ing farm products and 10 per cent in collective purchasing of farm supplies.

Girls to Whistle for Police When Molested

Whistling for a policeman may be- come the chief form of protection of women against criminals. A private detective of Los Angeles has invented a whistle for women to carry, which, he asserts, if used properly, will be greater aid in eliminating crime than if citizens carried guns.

He has demonstrated his plan, and hopes to standardize the signal so that it will be known throughout the coun- try as the official call for help. Com- panies will be asked to provide their employees with them and give instruc- tions in their use.

AT THE COURT HOUSE

Sues For Divorce.

Maud Fox has filed a suit for di- vorce from Isaac Fox in the probate court. The couple were married No- vember 26, 1908, and have four chil- dren, the youngest of whom is four years of age. She charges her hus- band with extreme cruelty and gross neglect and with consorting with Anna Shaeffer and twitting her with the fact. The plaintiff asks for alimony and for the custody of her children. C. A. Weldon represents the plaintiff.

Will of Caddy Miller.

The will of Caddy Miller has been probated. The testator directs his executor to pay the trustees of For- est cemetery the sum of $100, the in- terest of which is to be used for the upkeep of the family lot.

After making specific bequests and paying debts and expenses, the re- mainder is given to St. Philip's Epis- copal church. The estate is esti- mated to be worth $35,000 and the sum the church receives will probably be $20,000. Milt Morris is named as trustee and sole executor. The ap- praisers are G. A. Schleyer, O. S. How- ard and D. S. Dunlap.

Divorce Granted.

James Lemay has been granted a divorce from Agnes Lemay in probate court by Judge Adkins. The divorce was granted on the grounds of gross neglect of duty and the defendant was restored to her maiden name, Agnes Davis. Barton Walters represented the plaintiff.

Appointed Administrators.

O. M. Beckett was appointed admin- istrator of the estate of Margaret C. Helmick. J. O. Beckett, P. E. Peters and A. J. Hott were appointed ap- praisers.

Reed Gloyd was appointed admin- istrator of the estate of William Gloyd deceased. The estate is esti- mated to be worth $2000 of which $1,000 is personal. Frank Hutchins, Robert Hott and Ray Reed were ap- pointed appraisers.

Hotel Stenographer

BY ROE FULKERSON

"Look at that lip," said the Hotel Stenographer, "I went out for an automobile ride last night on the National highway which runs to Hanover. When you get on a road like that you can't stop. The windshield was open and my lip chapped and now it's all split and me slated for a party with a new boy tonight."

"Was you kissing him?" asked the House Detective.

"No," cried the girl, emphatically. "Most women do not like to kiss men. They like to kiss one particular man, of course, but the idea of being kissed and petted by men, as a class, does not appeal to many girls, Kelly."

"But all women want every man they meet to think while he is with them, how nice it would be to kiss them."

"That's why I am heartbroken over this lip. Can you imagine any one wanting to kiss a girl with a split lip?"

"Any woman would rather have in- flammatory rheumatism than a head cold. The reason is no man ever wanted to kiss a woman whose nose was red or who was likely to explode into a sneeze."

"That's why every woman is more careful to powder her nose than the rest of her face and is more anxious to get her lipstick work straight than to have her rouge properly placed."

"Dentists, perfumers and compact makers all get a living out of the fact that every woman wants to look kiss- able, altho few women want to be kissed."

"The highest compliment a man can pay a woman is to want to kiss her, and it is always wise for him to tell her so, even if he does not try to do it."

"Don't worry, kid," laughed Kelly. "I'll kiss you, lip or no lip."

"Try and do it!" snapped the girl.

U. S. HUNTER BARES PLOT TO GET BOUNTY ON WOLF

Worker Exposes Attempt to Defraud Government—Elusive, Animal Eats Poisoned Bait.

Government predatory-animal hun- ters must not only know how to trap and poison stock-killing wild animals, but also must be on the alert to de- tect human attempts to obtain rewards fraudulently by exploiting the hunters, according to common experience among these men. As an instance, last Au- gust Hunter C. E. Gillham was de- tailed by the biological survey of the United States Department of Agri- culture to the Agulla district of Arizona, with instructions to destroy a noti- cious wolf that had been running on that range for the past nine years. Bounties of from $50 to $500 had been offered for it by stockmen, but with- out success. Last winter this wolf had killed 40 sheep in one night, in ad- dition to the hundreds of calves and yearlings it had attacked previously. Although shot at many times, it had always escaped, and also it managed to avoid all traps and poison baits.

It was agreed that Gillham would undertake to get the wolf on con- dition that all bounty offers be with- drawn. After trailing the old thief for about five weeks, the hunter found a yearling helper killed by it within a mile and a half of Agulla. He dragged it behind his automobile for a mile, and put out poisoned baits made of its flesh. The day after he put out these baits, he found the carcass of a big coyote that usually followed behind the wolf in its cat- tle-killing expeditions, but no trace of the wolf.

Later on a man who lives in the dis- trict brought in the skin of the fa- mous wolf. He claimed he had shot the animal and tried to collect bounty. On examination it was found not only that the wolf had been shot after it had been dead for some time, but that the stomach contained four poisoned baits. The bounty seeker, thus ex- posed in his dishonesty, gave up the skin without further trouble.

Physician Claims New Cure for Tuberculosis

New York.—A new treatment for pulmonary tuberculosis whereby the disease is attacked through the build- ing up of fibrous tissue in the lymph- atics of the lungs has been announced to the medical profession by Dr. Thomas F. Noland (above) of New York. During 13 years' study he claims he has found that amorphous carbon and calcium salts, in powder form, breathed in the lungs, checks the further advance of the disease. Doctor Noland is shown in his office demonstrating the manner in which medicine used in the treatment is administered to patients through an apparatus of his own construction.

Gold Spangled Pearls Discovered in France

A fresh-water pearl fishery is one of the hitherto unsuspected treasures of France, according to a report by M. Henneguy to the Academy of Sciences at Paris. He said Raphael Dubois has discovered in the center of France fresh water mussels that produce pearls com- paring favorably in color and bril- liance with the best efforts of the oyster. As a specimen M. Henneguy exhibited a pearl of oval form with a slightly purplish tint and brilliant luster.

The microscope showed a small spangle of gold incrusting in the pearl, and it is recalled that the Romans obtained certain quantities of gold from the sands of water courses of central France during their domination. Mem- bers of the academy are skeptical of the productive capacity of the fresh- water mussel, although they regard the specimen shown as of undoubted value.

An attack on a launch by a giant shark is described by Arthur Robinson. He said he was en route from Lau- toka to Yasawas, in Fiji Islands, when his small launch struck heavily against something.

"I first thought we had hit a reef," he related, "but could not understand it, as we were in deep water. A minute afterward came another bang and a great thudding under the stern. I looked over the side and saw a big shark with his head and mouth in rib- bons. He must have gone for a feed off the propeller. It killed him. He simply rolled round and round like a corkscrew and went straight down till out of sight."

SOCIAL CALENDAR

The senior class of the Circleville high school gave a party at the school Thursday night. It was a "kid" party, everybody dressed appropriately. It was well attended, the chaparones be- ing Miss Watson and Miss Poole, of the faculty. Rompers, hair ribbons, doll babies and socks donated by the girls, while the boys appeared in short trousers, bow ties and chewing gum. Dancing and games were en- joyed by all. Lunch was delightfully served after which the party ad- journed.

The Woman's Home Missionary so- ciety and their friends were delight- fully entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Catherine Downs, the hostess being assisted by the members of group three. Mrs. Wil- liam Elm gave a most interesting talk on "The Child and the School" after which Mrs. Harry McMahon very suc- cessfully led in a discussion of the subject. Two musical numbers were given, a vocal duet by Mrs. Mack Noggle and Miss Carrie Johnson and a piano solo by Miss Dorothy John- son. These numbers were well ren- dered and greatly appreciated by the ladies. A social hour followed, dur- ing which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess and her assist- ants.

The jury in the case of Henry Dun- lap against Lulu Dunlap Laird and others in which the plaintiff sought to have the will of their father, the late Marion Dunlap, set aside, made its re- port to Judge C. A. Reid in the com- mon pleas court of Fayette county. The case was bitterly contested. The plaintiff was represented by C. E. Robuck and Maddox & Maddox. John Logan and John P. Phillips for the defendants. The case was started on January 16, of this year.

HARTMAN THEATER

The great American thriller, "Whispering Wires" the melo drama that Kate L. McLaurin made for the stage from a Saturday evening Post story of the same name by Henry Leverage will be the attraction at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days, February 11, 12 and 14, with a matinee on Wednesday. This very successful play ran all last year in New York and many of the metropol- itan dramatic critics declared it was a far better play than either "The Bat" or "The Cat and the Canary." The original story from which it was dramatized was a corking good de- tective yarn and in transferring it to the stage Miss McLaurin was careful not to lose any of its exciting moments. Montgomery Stockbridge is one of these hard men of wealth who care nothing for anything but money. In amassing a fortune he even dealt harshly with friends. Many of those former associates turn on him and would destroy him. One of them un- known to Stockbridge sends him a letter, telling this man of wealth that his grave has been dug. Furious, he summons the police. While discussing the probable writer of the letter Stockbridge is informed over his own private telephone that he will be dead in two hours' time. And he does die despite the fact that detectives are guarding him. But to tell more would be to spoil the thrill of the play. Thrill follows thrill with a love story interwoven with laughter punctuating the more serious situations. That is why "Whispering Wires" is called the great American thriller. Since its run in New York, such cities as Chi- cago, Philadelphia and Boston have put their stamp of approval on it. It comes to Columbus direct from its Boston engagement of ten weeks with the original company. Mail orders are being filled in the order of their receipt. The engagement lasts only three days with a Wednesday matinee.

Daily Thought.
Where should the scholar live? In solitude or in society? In the green stillness of the country, where he can hear the heart of Nature beat, or in the dark, gray town where he can hear and feel the throbbing heart of man?—
Longfellow.
Few Escape Censure.
It is harder to avoid censure than to gain applause. But to escape censure a man must pass his whole life without saying or doing a foolish thing.—Hume.

Alaskan Fur-Seal Bull Fasts Amidst Plenty

The Alaskan fur-seal bull, although surrounded at all times with ample food and drink, has a period of complete fasting for three months out of each year. This occurs during the breeding season. The bull is kept in a perpetual state of excitement and activity by continual fights to protect his harem of cows from other bulls.
At the beginning of the breeding season the bulls are in marvelous condition, weighing as much as four hundred pounds each. Their pelts are thick and firm and they have a tremendous amount of energy. At the end of their period of fasting they are drained of all their stored-up energy; and the fat has disappeared from their flesh and bones.

Mistook His Opponent

Two pickaninnies, not thoroughly accustomed to ocean bathing, were engaged in a "water fight" off a Florida beach one windy afternoon. The fight consisted of desperate attempts on the part of each combatant, breast deep in water, to dash more of the ocean in his opponent's face than he himself was getting. They did not notice the huge wave which rolled slowly up to them, lifted the little fellow nearest the beach clean off his feet, and sat him gently in the back water.

Considerably surprised, the pick-aninny rose to the surface, dripping and spluttering, and turned to his companion, an awed expression on his face.

"Boy," he said, breathlessly, "boy, yo' got me licked."—Harper's Magazine.

Assuming the Blame

A school presided over by a very harsh and bad-tempered teacher had a visit one afternoon from the bishop of the diocese.

The bishop, a genial soul, called before him a white-faced urchin who was very much cowed and depressed by an undeserved punishment he had received that morning.

"My boy," said the bishop, in eloquent tones, "who made this great and glorious earth of ours, and set the sun, moon and stars in the wonderful firmament?"

The white-faced boy began to blubber.

"I did," he said, "but I won't do it again."

To Be Continued

"Is this, then, to be the end of our romance?" he asked.

"Oh, no," she answered, "my lawyer will call on you in the morning. I have a bushel and a half of your letters."

Boomerangs.
Boomerang-like objects are claimed by some to have existed in ancient Egypt and Assyria, and it may be that certain bone objects which belonged to prehistoric man were used in the same manner as boomerangs. This weapon was used by the Australian bushmen. It averages 2 1/2 feet in length by 2 1/4 inches in width. It is made of the green wood of the acacia, or some other hard wood, treated with fire. In India, boomerangs are made of ivory or steel, and are generally sickle-shaped.

Size of the Human Body.
Authorities differ in fixing the number of square feet of the surface of the human body, there being no fixed limit owing to the variations in size, but a man of 5 feet 8 inches weighing around 175 pounds has a skin surface of approximately 16 square feet. The larger men and women measure more, some of them very much more, while some of the more diminutive bodies have a measurement as low as 10 square feet.

MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The monthly meeting of the Pickaway County Medical society met Friday evening at the Palace restaurant. The society listened to a talk by Dr. Hugh Baldwin, of Columbus, on the subject; "Syphilis and its Treatment." A discussion followed and the members were treated to a banquet. Twenty-one members were present.

CHAPTER MEETING.

The Royal Arch degree will be conferred on a class of candidates Monday evening at 7 o'clock in the Masonic temple. All members are urged to attend.

CHURCH HOTEL

Twenty Story Building Will Have All Comforts for Guests

Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary church, a mainstay of fundamentalism in the metropolis, proposes to erect a 20 story building to contain not only a church auditorium accommodating 5000 worshippers, but a "Christian hotel" where "solid men and women can rest in peaceful fellowship without the unwelcome attentions of the scarlet woman and the lounge lizard."

New York has been rather proud of its hotels. In the best of them and for that matter in the most of them, a guest can be comfortable if he has the price without being bothered by anyone who can be distinguished either by scarlet hue or saurian guise. Occasionally a sneak thief causes a little excitement but ordinarily the most sinful practice observed is that of the nonpaying guest who confines his use of hotel facilities to its writing rooms. The various successors of Peacock Alley rather add to the attractions of the house.

Still, there is no reason why a church should not run a hotel and many reasons in precedent why it should. Thruout the middle ages the religious houses furnished shelter to the traveler and in many parts of the Near East they still fulfill that ancient function. Probably, however, Dr. Straton's hotel will have to charge set prices for its rooms and food and not rely, like its eastern examples, upon the good-will offering of departing guests dropped unostentatiously in the poor box.—New York World.

An Oklahoma editor, just about to go to press, "spied" a couple of articles, one concerning a public sale, and the other a write-up of a wedding. He asked the makeup man to get the two articles together; and he did; but here is how he put the two together. The "mixture" was not known to the editor until an angry preacher and the mother of the bride appeared on the scene.

"William Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my barn one mile east of a beautiful cluster of roses on her breast before a background of farm implements too numerous to mention in the presence of about seventy guests including two milk cows six mules and one bobbed. Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot with two hundred feet of hay rope and the bridal couple left on one John Deere gang plow for an extended trip, with terms to suit purchasers. They will be at home to their friends with one good buggy and a few kitchen utensils after ten months from date of sale to responsible parties and some fifty chickens."—Upshaw (Tex.) County Echo.

QUAINT CUSTOMS SURVIVE IN CITY

Jalapa, Mex., Captured by Rebels, Clings to Past.

Jalapa, capital of the Mexican state of Vera Cruz, which was one of the first towns to fall to the insurrectionists in Mexico's newest revolution, is a cul-de-sac in which old Spanish and Indian customs and the flavors of past centuries linger to a greater extent than in most of the other cities of Mexico," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"There the 'milk wagon' is a jarriden mule, lovers nightly 'play the bear' before their sweethearts' barred windows, and with each booming of the hour by the cathedral bells, watchmen sound their whistles and call out the tidings of the night.

"Only in the past few years," continues the bulletin, "has there been added a dash of Twentieth century apparatus and Twentieth century ways, and as yet those traces of modernism serve only to accentuate Jalapa's quaintness as the few grains of salt that an expert chef scatters bring out the flavor of a custard.

Has Its Human Burden-Bearers.

"The railroad bound for Mexico City passes Jalapa by on a lower level. Spread out and upward on its hill-sides, the old city has gone on its ancient way little disturbed by the trains that roll by several times each day. Some of the freight that goes up to the city from the station is carried on mule-drawn tramcars, but most of it is borne on parallel poles, each end of the device serving as shafts between which plod solemn mules. And competing with the mules is an even more ancient method of freight transfer, that of the cargador. Your trunk, if you stop off at Jalapa, will probably be taken to your hotel balanced on the sturdy back of one of these human burden-bearers, the weight held forward by his broad head-strap.

"As in modern cities of the United States there are few horse-drawn trucks in Jalapa. But while horse-drawn vehicles are becoming passe in Yankeeland, their age has never even been reached in Jalapa. All day one hears the musical tinkle of mule-bells as trains of the animals pass along the streets laden with sacks of coffee and sugar from nearby plantations, cans of milk from small farms, bags of charcoal from pits in the hills, or farseous collections of native pottery for the market. The city is in the edge of a rich plantation country and its big warehouses fairly bulge with coffee and sugar.

"The prominence of the mule in Jalapa gives rise to one of its most characteristic features. Scattered over the town are big open courts formed of narrow-roofed stalls where are quartered alike mules and mule-teers, while against the walls are piled great tiers of pack-saddles. These places, reminiscent of the wagon-yards of our old West, are Jalapa's forums and coffee shops—the Fultah Fisher's boarding houses for her dry-land mariners. Fires glow in the courts in the evenings and about them the mule drivers loaf and joke and curse, swap yarns, drink mescal, and settle to their liking the affairs of their turbulent republic.

"Law of the Pot Shot."

"In Jalapa live old Spanish families whose history there runs back almost to the days of Cortez. Some have palatial city homes and also wide-spreading haciendas and commodious country houses not far away. In the early days much dependence was placed on 'miradores,' tower-like look-outs on both town and country houses, between which signals could be exchanged. Only a few 'miradores' linger on old Jalapa houses, but the conditions that made them necessary have not altogether passed. They were most useful in the days when Jalapa was a post station on the old highway—named like most other Mexican roads, 'el camino real'—that led from Vera Cruz to Mexico City. Highway-men infested the country around Jalapa to attack the coaches and mule trains; and often, growing more bold, raided neighboring haciendas and even the town itself. A law that recalls strikingly those stirring times still exists on the statute books—a rule that an American might well call 'the law of the pot shot.' By it a citizen is privileged—it almost becomes his duty—to shoot on general principles at any horseman leaving the city at a gallop.

"One American who has cast his lot in Jalapa has brought to the city most of its modern trimmings. But he has worked slowly lest in mingling the Twentieth century with the Sixteenth he bring about a sort of social and economic indigestion. Twenty years ago he built an electric light and power plant. Two years ago he introduced 'jitney' buses and gave most of the Jalapenos their first sight of an automobile. Then, after observing the ways of Main street's booster clubs, he constructed an amphitheater for civic celebrations, built for Jalapa a full-fledged scenic driveway, and organized a merchants' association.

"But fete days pass, automobiles pall, especially on Jalapa's bumpy cobble streets, and the 'chipl-chipl' blots out even the 'Road of the Clouds.' At best the things of the Twentieth century merely graze the edge of Jalapa's consciousness. Beneath, the Jalapenos live happily in the atmosphere of the centuries that are gone."

OLD CHECKS

John Van Meter, Deceased, Neglected to Present Them for Payment.

Several checks for small amounts, given to John Van Meter of Chillicothe, eighteen to twenty-three years ago and bearing signatures of local citizens, this week appeared here for payment and part of them, at least, have been ordered paid, altho legally the checks probably have been rendered worthless by time.

One of the checks, for $4.20 was drawn on the Commercial bank and signed by a firm of local attorneys. It bore the date of September 25, 1900 and bore a two cent revenue stamp required for a few years after the Spanish American war.

Another check given by the same firm, drawn on the Fayette county bank and in the amount of $3.20 bore the date of January 21, 1905.

Other checks have come to local banks, all apparently having been given to Van Meter during the five year period of 1900 to 1905 and evidently placed away with other documents and forgotten.

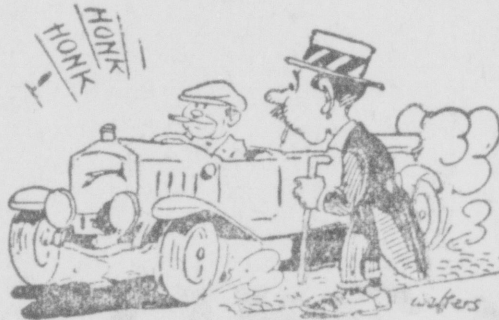

John Van Meter died some time ago and the checks are indorsed by Nellie V. Van Meter as executor of the estate of John Van Meter.—Washington Herald.
